It Takes a Village

"We strive to empower Black breastfeeding mothers, birthing people, and their families by fostering culturally responsive resources, education, and community support"

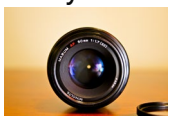

DON'T MISS OUR NEXT MEETING!!

AWARENESS THROUGH PHOTO

PHOTOVOICE

We are excited for Session #2 of Photovoice with Dr. Eboni Harris! We will talk about barriers to breast/chest feeding and how photos can raise awareness! This should spark great conversation for our homework assignment! Get your cameras ready!

TELLING YOUR STORY

STORYTELLING

We will be introduced to the next series of our discussion by hearing about the art of storytelling by Roshanda "The Rosho Live" Pratt! Find out more about her by visiting her website: https://www.therosholive.com

KNOW YOUR ELIGIBILITY!

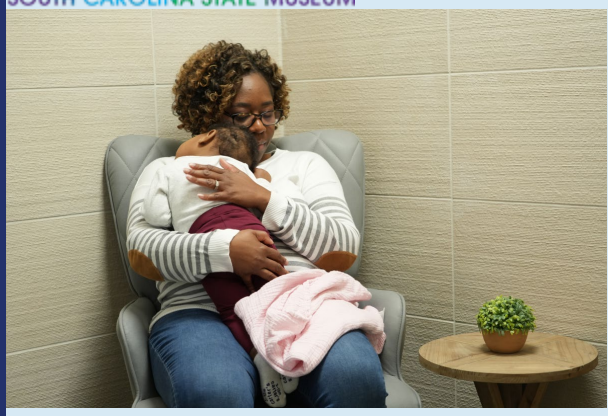

Did you know that South Carolina enacted a Paid Paternal Leave for state employees as of March 2023. Check with your employer for guidelines. It may help you or a friend!

Wellness Space Revealed!

The South Carolina State Museum in conjunction with Aflac have partnered to create several wellness spaces. These spaces were designed to accommodate a variety of needs for the public such as for those with disabilities or special needs and breastfeeding mothers. To learn more about these new spaces, check out this interview from our own Joy Jackson, Reimagine Your Experience!

Join us at our 2024 Conference:

Supporting Pumping Parents

January 26th & 27th, 2024

The Tides at Folly Beach, SC

Our first in-person conference since 2019

Featuring a workshop led by Jeanette Mesite Frem, an expert in all things pumping, especially flange-fitting.

- Learn about pumping trends, pumped milk quality, facilitating feeding skills, and getting pumps to those who need them.
- Put your hands on a variety of pumps and learn how they work.
- Network with colleagues and enjoy some fun activities.

See the agenda and find out about the speakers here. Visit our conference page to learn about attending, vending, and sponsoring.
